Dear Church Leader:

The Singing ChurchWomen of Oklahoma is a group of exceptional female minister/musicians selected by audition from around our state. One of the most important membership requirements that each of them must maintain, and in which they must excel, is their church ministry involvement. If your church has a choir, they must be a faithful member of that group. If your church has a praise team (and no choir), they must be willing and able to sing in that group. If your church has no music program whatsoever, they must have a recognized place of ministry and be faithful in service. They must serve in their church with gladness "as unto the Lord."

Would you please take a moment to answer and comment on the following statements concerning the church involvement of the Singing ChurchWomen member listed above?

1. She is actively involved, and an exemplary leader in the music/worship ministry of our church.
